

Ms. Sue Web
Auditor, VdE International

It was an absolute privilege to visit DCIS in June, and to be able to report back to Dr Hawkes and the team in the UK that fantastic Values-based Education work is happening in India.

I was impressed to see the impact of the VbE training that the DCIS leaders had in London in late 2016.

The atmosphere of the school, the policies and practices show true commitment to providing the best in holistic education for all.

Most of all, I was awed by the students I met. Their depth of understanding about how living values-based lives can create positive change in the world was astounding.

I congratulate everyone at DCIS on this excellent work and am looking forward very much to returning in the future.

Why do VbE?

Schools that have successfully embedded VbE in their whole school approach see improvements in:

- Staff and pupil relationships
- Respectful, responsible and kind behaviour
- Quality of teaching and learning - motivated and brave teachers and learners
- Educational standards and outcomes
- Parent and wider community engagement
- Levels of independence and ambition
- Students' ability to self-regulate and manage emotions
- Child-centred pedagogy and student voice
- Staff contentment, recruitment and retention

Transforming Schools

Now reaching over 1 million students, Values-based Education inspires children, young people and adults to adopt and live positive human values.

VbE transforms the school into exceptional environments for teaching and learning.

The focus on ethical and emotional intelligence, deepened relationships, social cohesion and a strong values-culture give students the best chance of academic success.
